Abigail,
Yes please refund the application fee and withdraw the application.
I will contact building and safety and have a permit pulled for the siding.

Hello Chris,

I apologize for not catching this sooner but because this is an 8-unit multiple family development 702.020(e)(10) does not apply. For developments less than 13 units there are no design standards that apply for only a siding replacement, so no design review is required. If you would like you can get a full refund and have the application withdrawn, I just need a conformation email from you. You will most likely still need a building permit. You can contact Building and Safety baspac@cityofsalem.net for if a building permit will be required and if so, what will be required for that.

Best,
